

New York Arbitration Week: International Arbitration in the Age of AI: Adapting, Innovating, Leading

November 19, 2024 | New York, NY

Generative AI is revolutionizing the legal landscape, reshaping how disputes are handled and the nature of legal practice. The technology will impact international arbitration significantly.

As AI technology scales and evolves, the legal community must decide how to harness its potential. This includes identifying tasks suitable for automation, exploring innovative processes to enhance efficiency and effectiveness, and determining when new dispute resolution methods might be more appropriate. The choice is clear: the legal community either can lead this transformation or be led by it. We advocate for active involvement to ensure a stronger future for international arbitration.

Our program features the leading AI experts in the legal profession who will discuss the current issues and questions surrounding this technological revolution.

The program will consist of two panels:

Our first panel will explore the current state of AI technology, its practical applications for lawyers and arbitrators, and the opportunities and challenges it presents.

The second panel will discuss the broader implications of generative AI on the business, the practice of law, and dispute resolution.

Bridget M. McCormack, President and CEO, AAA-ICDR® will moderate both panels.
